Saturday 13th May

On Friday the 12th of May year 6 went to forest school to celebrate the end of SAT's - a exam they took that week. When the class six teacher (Mrs Davies) took some of the girls to the toilet they pranked her by hiding behind a fence and pretended to have left the toilets so she thought they had gone. When Mrs Davies went to the toilet the girls, who were with her, hid behind a fence; one of the girls (Ellie) called out, "Come back, I'm coming with you!" Therefore the year 6 teacher of Upton-Upon-Severn thought they had gone back to the forest base. A few minutes later when she walked out she looked around but couldn't find the pupils. Mrs Davies reported, "It was worrying and scary because I didn't know where they were, however when they came out of hiding I knew it was a joke and found it very funny."

was very funny: Mrs Davies was shocked and angry. Eventually she saw it as a joke.

One of the children, Gracie Windows, who did the prank, felt that it

The pupils and their headteacher, Mrs Julie Wills, are sat around a fire.

HARD TIMES AT FOREST SCHOOL

Because year six have previously experienced many forest school activities the teachers felt as if they needed to do something different. So they decided to do an army day.

Their first activity was to taste some rations that the soldiers would've had in combat. The twenty-two children had different boxes full of lots of food: drinks (like coke, grapefruit, hot chocolate and tropical drinks); chocolate pudding; brownie, curry and soup. Mrs Davies had reported that she would never eat any of that; it looks like cat sick.

Mr Windows - a pupils' parent - works in the army and got some ration packs. In the photo he is showing them it.
