

Year 3 Forest School Session 5 13.2.2020

In Forest School this morning we continued to think about Inuits and some of their traditions. We looked at and made our own Inukshuks, which are man made stone landmarks to navigate through a frozen landscape. They are traditionally made from stone but we used the materials that we could find in Forest School. The children had some great ideas and added to their creations throughout the session.
